Explorer Turned Down.

Melbourne, Australia.—Dr. Eric Mjoberg, a Swedish scientist and alman, has requested permission of the commonwealth authorities to use an aeroplane in exploring the interior of Papua or British New Guinea, some parts of which have never been seen by a white man, but the Australian authorities have refused to sanction his project for fear of trouble with the natives. The English police are already hunting down some natives who recently killed one of their men with poisoned arrows, and although the natives are not feared for their fighting strength, the authorities are opposed to any unnecessary intrusion into their territory. An explorer who recently headed an expedition from the Dahli river had an unusual experience. "When I approached the natives," he said, "they stood and gazed at me, and in less than two minutes many of them fainted and collapsed at my feet. At another place a chief came within a few yards of me and when I went to take hold of his arm he fainted and fell into the bed of the creek. The whole crowd then assembled around me and prostrated themselves."

New Epoch in Shipbuilding.

London.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) A new epoch in shipbuilding which has been inaugurated by the formation of a Standardized Ship Construction company with a capital of $1,500,000 had its inception from the United States whence the first suggestion of standardization emanated. The plans provided for the construction at Chesapeake of 10 large ships at the same time, of a standardized type, 8,000 tons dead weight with a length of from 450 to 650 feet, while machinery will also be especially designed for producing standard parts of hulls and engines. The scheme, backed by the leading shipping interests of Great Britain and the idea has been approved in shipping circles where the dearth of vessels is being badly felt. The craft to be built will be well suited for the South Wales ports, to carry coal out and bring back grain.
